South Thames Colleges Group is an inclusive college and we are keen for all learners to be well cared for. We therefore ask all learners to declare if they have any criminal convictions. If you answer yes, you will be asked to provide further details. This does not automatically affect your admission, but allows the College to undertake a risk assessment (if needed) and provide support as appropriate.

Do you have any criminal convictions? Yes No

Please read the following information before answering the question above

Do I need to disclose cautions, reprimands or final warnings when applying to a college?

In most cases, you will not need to disclose cautions, reprimands or final warnings when applying to a college. Most college courses are covered by the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act (ROA), which means that you will not need to disclose offences which are spent. Cautions, reprimands and final warnings are spent immediately (with the exception of conditional cautions, which are spent three months after the date of issue).

If you are applying for a course that requires you to undertake a placement in a health or social care environment, or a school or Further Education (FE) college, you may need to declare your caution(s), reprimand(s) and final warning(s) unless they are protected (i.e. eligible for filtering).

Do I need to disclose my conviction(s) when applying to a college?

You will need to disclose your conviction when applying to a college if:

- your conviction is not yet spent under the ROA and the college is asking you for a criminal record declaration (either verbally or in writing)
- or
- your conviction is spent, but not protected (i.e. eligible for filtering) and you are applying for a course that will involve a placement role that is exempt from the ROA. Roles that are exempt from the ROA are those that are eligible for Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) checks.

If you are not sure whether you need to disclose your conviction when applying to a college, please contact us the Resettlement Advice Service on 0300 123 1999 or helpline@nacro.org.uk

Declaration – Check that all sections have been completed. Sign and date and return to your chosen College
